

Dr. Hideko Suzuki

Bonds of Love With the Dying

Thinking About Death From Both Sides

Sunday, November 13th, 2011

1:30 pm (Door opens 1:15 pm)

Spalding Hall Auditorium #155

University of Hawai'i at Manoa

Ticket: $20

As human beings, nothing is more frightening than the fear of death. For the person who is facing death, it means the end of life, total emptiness, and leaving behind loved ones. At the same time, family and friends are struggling to come to terms with their loss. Death is inescapable, solemn, inevitable. One might say that the whole meaning of life is inherently bound to the inevitability of death.

"Happy Way to Die" by Dr. Hideko Suzuki

Many people have shared their moment of death with Dr. and Sister Hideko Suzuki. At this seminar, Dr. Suzuki will share her wisdom & rich experience about how to cope with death, how to support and strengthen the bond between family and loved ones facing death. Please join us in musing together on the subject of death, which is, simultaneously, a musing about life. Because of the mature nature of the subject, we respectfully ask that children not attend.

Dr. Hideko Suzuki, and Sister of the Society of Sacred Heart

Is a graduate of Tokyo University Graduate School, with a PhD in Literature, and has also studied in France and Italy. Dr. Suzuki has taught at Stanford University and Sacred Heart Girls University in Japan, and is Chairwoman of the International Communion Society. She conducts numerous seminars and workshops, in Japan and around the world, about the meaning of life. Dr. Suzuki has authored numerous books and translations, including: "Messages from the Dying", which became a national sensation following a NHK documentary about it, "Key Words to Finding Happiness", and several books on Active Listening.
